an exhibition in response to its space, and to what was there before.

We gather here in celebration at the banks of a spring ran dry. The location of this exhibition, not too long ago, was a grocery store, a medicine shop, and a news stand. All encompassing, yet insufficient. What, however, defines a space are the bodies it holds. Stripped down and voided, these structures do not belong to us, but are ours to claim.

2 Newports longs for familiar faces, is so much more than a fugitive transaction...and maybe thats all we really need. The Peachtree Newsstand was a well, a wishing well.
We wish you well.
